

Site Selection Presents 300 Utility Contacts Around the World

The Geo-Utility Index contains a wealth of useful information about utility companies and their economic development services.

The 1994 Geo-Utility Index contains information on more than 200 electric and gas utilities around the globe.

Information on U.S. utility companies is presented first, followed by data on utilities in Canada and other countries.

Contact Information

The following information (where available) is presented for each utility company in the Index: company name; utility type (e.g., electric, gas, etc.); contact name and title; telephone number; mailing address; service area description (e.g., the geographic area served by the utility); and economic development services offered to corporate real estate executives.

Economic Development Services

Economic development services information in the Index is abbreviated as follows:

- ECA = energy cost analyses;
- CRA = comparative rate analyses;
- EP = evaluation programs;
- IR = incentive rates;
- EC = energy-conservation analyses;
- UH = 24-hour utility hook-up;
- ALA = area location analyses;
- CISB = computerized inventory of sites and buildings;
- CISC = computerized inventory of potential supplier/customer firms;
- F = financing of facilities;
- DWD = area demographics and wage data;
- TCA = transportation costs analyses;
- TA = tax analyses;
- WE = wetlands evaluation;
- ECS = area engineering and contractors' fees and services;
- CWR = construction trade wage rates; and
- R&E = retention and expansion services.
